

At our August meeting, the land trust board discussed the need to plan some fall walks on our properties. We are taking part in the Science-to-Action project which involves folks from Bolton, Huntington, Jericho and Richmond. One of their events will be a walk on our Gateway property entitled "Walk into the Past." It will take place on September 21.

Some exciting news is the creation of a six-minute video about our land trust created by Michael McKnight and narrated by Livy Strong. You can see the video on the main page of our website.

JULT is planning to do some logging on the Gateway property this winter after the ground has frozen. We are working with Charlie Wiegand to establish access to the property. In other land stewardship news, we are working on improved signage for Wolfun Natural Area. Although land acquisition projects are always exciting, it's nice to have some time to do important work on the property we already own.
